

KOKODA TRACK OR TRAIL,

what you call it doesn't really matter. What you do know is when you trek those 96kms it's hard, bloody hard.

And that's with good boots, plenty of food, shelter, first aid kits, guides and with no enemy hell bent on killing you as you negotiate the intimidating Owen Stanley Ranges.

What you will also understand as you cross those jungle hills is there is something spiritual about walking the Track, a sense of history, a humbling sense of walking in the footsteps of heroes, and always a sense of disbelief that this was the fighting arena for our Diggers, many of whom never returned to their loved ones and their homeland.

Kokoda Spirit understands that each person who undertakes this journey has different reasons for doing so. They share your commitment and your respect for those who sacrificed so much during the Kokoda Campaign.

Kokoda Spirit will help you from your initial inquiry to that last step when you realise, with a mixture of elation, exhaustion and pride that you have just walked the legendary Kokoda Track.

Kokoda Spirit prides themselves on their excellent reputation from years of leading treks, their focus on safety, knowledge of history of the Kokoda Campaign, support of, and appreciation of the local people. Their exceptional staff, guides, trek masters, porters and cooks all have the combined experience to lead you across the track with confidence.

Kokoda Spirit has the experience, passion and commitment to make your trek an unforgettable quest that will remain with you forever.
